During the past week i have been researching and understanding the correlation so that it would be easier to code in the next term as well as i have been designing the new dashboard as the clients requested more requirements. Also, since I'm responsible for the website, I have been updating it constantly.

Siew:

This week, I am in charge of compiling all the requirements from the client. Throughout the past weeks, our clients have been giving us requirements for the projects one by one. I have collected all the requirements and confirm with our clients. Our clients were happy to see that we understand their requirement and are looking forward to our next step.
